

International Trade APINDO conducts International Trade Forum “Addressing non-tariff barriers to maximize Indonesia trade potential”

Jakarta, 26 January 2016. With the agenda to address information gap among members by assessing the evidence on the reality of Indonesia position in International trade, the forum aims to address the following issues such as: the common NTBs issues of Indonesia in international trade, the best practice of trade activities to deal with non-tariff barriers and future strategic plan in maximizing Indonesia trade negotiations; this included comprehensive explanation on trade initiatives and progress, and some critical issues to Indonesia’s business sector. Speakers of the forum are Mrs. Intan Soeparna, Airlangga Institute of International Law Study and Dr. Zakiyah, National Standardization Agency, and Mrs. Netty Muharni, Coordinating Ministry for Economic Affairs. Non-Tariff Measures (NTMs) are policy measures, other than ordinary customs tariffs, that can potentially have an economic effect on international trade in goods, changing quantities traded, or prices or both. NTMs encompass all measures altering the conditions of international trade, including policies and regulations that restrict trade and those that facilitate it. NTMs are often incorrectly referred to as non-tariff barriers (NTBs). However, the difference between NTMs and NTBs is NTMs comprise a wider set of measures than NTBs, which are now generally intended only as discriminatory non-tariff measures imposed by Governments to favour domestic over foreign suppliers.
